From the Back Cover

Quote from the author: "I am far from a perfect man. I am flawed. I've made mistakes. I don't know it all. I am by my very nature somewhat superficial. I love beautiful, smart women. I love fast cars, good vodka and power. I am no expert in love or business. I am, however, an expert in the human experience and condition.

There is not much in the adversity department that I haven't seen or done. Poverty, divorce, humility, shame, joy, love, success, failure, been there done it. Character, balance, honesty, romance, parenting, faith... these are my most valuable traits.

I'm the best friend you never had, the brother you always wanted, the lover you fantasized about, enemy you hate, child you're proud of, man you're disappointed in. I am you... I'm your good, bad, beauty, and ugliness all at the same time. I am a fighter, a lover, the Yin and the Yang. I am the teacher, the student and most importantly... I am Whole."

Life is not about perfection. It's not about always winning or making the best decisions. Life is about love, relationships, success, empathy and humility. These characteristics are developed through pain, suffering, mistakes, failure and faith. Brenden Dilley is a single father who has failed repeatedly.

He is not "squeaky clean" or without flaws. He's real. He's authentic and he's got a message to share with all of you who are willing to listen. This book is his gift. It's a look inside the mind of a man who refused to quit, who refused to be jaded and did not stop imposing his will until Life delivered to him, victory.

About the Author

Brenden Dilley was introduced to the world of "self-help" at the age of eleven by his mother, Lisa Kitter. At the age of thirteen, he was doing book reports on titles such as "Think and Grow Rich" by Napoleon Hill. He was raised in a typical middle-class family until his parents divorced when he was thirteen. His mother would later become a self-made millionaire as a speaker, author and corporate trainer. During this time Brenden worked, traveled, spoke and mentored by his mom's side.

Upon graduating from high school, Brenden went on to become a highly successful personal trainer, receiving his certification through the National Academy of Sports Medicine. However, Brenden wasn't content with simply parroting the teachings of others. He would eventually create his class and method of training called "The Psychology of Fitness." Utilizing this unique form of self-development and body altering training, Brenden became known for transforming client's bodies as well as their minds. It was widely known that if you committed to training with Brenden not only would you become healthier physically, but other facets of your life would improve as well.

Brenden is also a single parent to his three children: Sophia Rose, Jasmine Nai'a and Phoenix Alexander. Much of what Brenden writes, speaks about, teaches and trains on revolves around parenting, dating, relationships, self-empowerment, fitness and authenticity. His intensity, intelligence, directness and self-deprecating humor allow audiences and readers to relate to him on a very raw and authentic level.

Currently, Brenden resides in Gilbert, Arizona, and works in the world of commercial real estate development.
